The trouble between Schutte and members of the Ball family dates back to 1914, when Schutte as a constable arrested Ball. Later the members of the Ball family are said to have made faces at him as he passed along the road, which aroused fierce anger in Schutte. To-night Schutte sent out word from his cell in the county jail that he would not talk about the case, except to say that he was innocent of any crime, and would prove it at the proper time. He has not been able to furnish the $10,000 to ball demanded.

One of the reasons why Schutte has been cruel to his wife, according to information received to-night, was that he had trouble with her over property worth about $25,000, which he transferred to her name about a year ago, when he was threatening to kill her if ahe refusal.
